PONZI ASKS JURY TRIAL TO BLOCK RECEIVERS' PROBE

Y. D. CHIEF TO HEAD BRIGADE

General Edwards Transferred From Northeastern Department to Camp Dix, N. J.

Brigadier-General Clarence R. Edwards, leader of the Yankee Division during the major portion of its service abroad and commander of the Northeastern Department, has been relegated to the command of a brigade in the First Division of the Second Army Corps.

After September 1 he will be stationed at Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J., in command of the Second Brigade of the first division of which Major-General Summerall is commander. Major-General Bullard is commander of the Second Army Corps of which this division is a part.

This announcement was made today at army headquarters and caused a wave of indignation among friends of the general. And throughout the New England States that announcement that he had been still further snubbed caused a strong protest. Being a good soldier General Edwards makes no comment.

READJUST HOURS OF CITY STABLE EMPLOYES

Working hours in the stables of the Roxbury public works department will be readjusted so that the employes can get through in time to attend church or other functions in the evening. Announcement to that effect was made at the meeting of the Stablemen's Benevolent Association at St. Ross Hall, Worcester street. A committee which made the request to Public Works Commissioner Sullivan reported that a change in hours would be made.

TWO DETECTIVES DIE IN CHICAGO RIOT

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Two detectives are dead and an unidentified man was wounded, but escaped as a result of a riot early today at the Pekin Cafe, a South State street resort. Police Sergeant William Hennessy died at the Mercy Hospital of gunshot wounds shortly after the shooting and Sergeant James Mulcahey died a few hours later.

1,000 OUT OF WORK AS MILLS ARE CLOSED

Winchendon, Aug. 23.—The cotton mills of Nelson D. White & Sons at Winchendon Springs and Glenn Allen were closed down today for an indefinite period. Cancellation of orders was given as the cause. About 1,000 operatives were affected. The company makes blue denim.

CALL 24-HOUR STRIKE AS A RENT PROTEST

Glasgow, Aug. 23.—Thirty labor unions united in a twenty-four hours' strike today as a protest against the increase in rents. There was a parade in Glasgow.

Second Woman's Body in New York Harbor

New York, Aug. 23.—While the mystery of the woman whose headless and limbless torso was found in the Hudson off Pier 5, Jersey City, nearly a week ago remains unexplained, the waters of the harbor have given up the body of another woman.

How she met her fate is as deep a puzzle as that involved in the case of the other victim.

The new mystery came to light when the floating tugboat found the body of a woman on the rocks under the guns of Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island.

Plainly a woman of refinement and evidently from a circle where no means had been ample, the harbor's latest castaway is lying in the island's morgue, unidentified. The police are seeking to solve the mystery with only a name and a number in one of her slippers to aid them in their investigation.

While Dr. George F. Mora assistant medical examiner, after an autopsy, said he thought the woman was a suicide from the fact that water was found in her lungs, the police could made no explanation of the fact that a man's shirt, bloodstained, was over the mouth of the woman.

The body was discovered wedged in a cleft of the rocks forming a natural buttress to the southern end of the army post.

Moscow Admits Poles Have Great Fortress; 40,000 Prisoners Taken

London, Aug. 23.—Loss of the great Polish fortress city of Brest-Litovsk was admitted by the Soviet war office today. A communique wireless from Moscow says: "We have abandoned Brest-Litovsk on the territory in the vicinity of Ostrojal Vlodava."

Warsaw, Aug. 22, via London, Aug. 23.—The number of Russian prisoners captured in the great Polish victory was estimated tonight at 40,000.

The trophies and booty taken by the Poles have reached such enormous proportions they cannot be estimated. Twenty-one Bolshevik divisions were represented among the prisoners.

New Bedford Investors Claim There Was Misrepresentation in Selling of Stock

New Bedford, Aug. 23.—Thirteen more suits for amounts ranging from $140 to $1,350 have been filed in the Superior Court against the H. V. Greene Company of Boston and against two of its subsidiaries, the First People's Trust and the Mutual Finance Corporation.

The suits were filed through Attorney Charles F. Archambault in every case the plaintiffs declare that agents of the Greene Company obtained money from them under false pretenses. Seven of the suits are brought against the Greene Company and the First People's Trust as co-defendants and six against the Greene Company and the Mutual Finance Corporation and the Greene Company jointly.

In the cases against the first People's Trust the complainants allege that the Greene agents stated that the First People's Trust was an incorporated bank, doing business un-

†DEADLOCK THREATENS LYNN SHOE INDUSTRY

Failure of the Lynn shoe manufacturers and the shoe workers unions to come to an agreement on the working terms which are to replace the present one, which expires September 29, threatens to result in thousands of operatives being idle and a serious shortage in the shoe production in that city. A deadlock now exists between the manufacturers and the union, with little prospects of either side yielding.

POLICEMAN ATTACKED BY GANG

Patrolman Cronin Badly Injured by Four Men; Loses Gun, Club and Badge

Patrolman Lawrence P. Cronin of Station 11, Dorchester, was ill at his home, No. 78 Adams street, Dorchester, today, suffering from wounds received when attacked by four men at the corner of Freeport and Greenwich streets, Dorchester, while patrolling his beat shortly after midnight today.

Several of the patrolman's front teeth were knocked out by a soda water bottle hurled by one of the men, his face was battered and he suffered contusions about other parts of the body.

Cronin was knocked down during the fight and his revolver and club taken from him by one of the men. His badge also was lost during the scuffle.

Cronin said he saw the four men standing on the street near a railroad bridge at this point and ordered them to move on. One of them, he said, then threw the pop bottle which broke against his face and later all four attacked him. A sergeant and a squad of officers from Division 11 were sent to the scene but were unable to find any of the quartet.

Cronin is twenty-five years old and a World War veteran. He served with the 26th Division overseas as a corporal of the 102nd Field Artillery, was gassed at Chateau-Thierry and on another occasion was wounded by a machine gun bullet.

Mrs. De Valera Joins Husband in America

New York, Aug. 23.—A big reception is being planned by citizens of Irish birth in Greenwich, Ct., for Eamon De Valera and his wife. Mrs. De Valera arrived incognito from Ireland a few days ago and is staying with him at the Edgewood Inn.

Mrs. De Valera, who travelled to this country with a Miss O'Connor, slipped quietly into town, and was first seen by the public when she and her husband attended the last mass at St. Mary's Church Sunday morning.

She is a pretty, auburn-haired native of County Wicklow, whose first interest in life seems to be her husband and children. She declared she had never talked with reporters and that the public should be interested in Ireland and her husband, and not in the woman herself.

"She doesn't like publicity," said De Valera. "She came over for a little while to see me and now I take it that she must have some attention from me rather than the public press. We have no special plans. We are here for a short rest and will probably be here for the remainder of the week. I can't say how long Mrs. De Valera will be in the country."

It was said that the incognito assumed by Mrs. De Valera was unnecessary, as British officials here said that there were no restrictions in force against her.

De Valera declined to give the date of his wife's arrival, but judging from the fact that he cabled her parents Friday morning she has been in the country not more than five days. The children did not accompany their mother.

Cause Is Almost Won, Declares Mannix

Dublin, Aug. 23.—Archbishop Mannix of Australia has addressed the following message to the Irish people:

"I appeal to the Irish people to be calm and firm under the insult offered them and me. Ireland can afford to be patient, for, though she is suffering much, her cause is almost won. The recent 'English naval victory' has but added fuel to the flame which it was meant to extinguish."

DEMAND BURRELL QUIT RACE

Republicans in Session Favor Action to Get Treasurer Off Ticket

Two plans dealing with State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell and the treasuryship situation were discussed today at the meeting of Republican clubs in the Kimball Building headquarters of the Republican State Committee.

One plan favored the adoption of a resolution calling upon Burrell to retire as Republican candidate for re-election as State Treasurer, provided he receives the nomination at the primaries.

A second and more drastic action was demanded by the radical members, who urged that a resolution be adopted condemning Burrell for his activities in connection with his advertising agency, and a "slicker" candidate be named, who would be supported by the Republican organizations throughout the State, and endorsed by the Republican State Committee.

Harry N. Brown of South Acton, a Boston banker, will probably run on stickers, whatever action is taken. Former Senator Robert M. Washburn of Worcester and Lombard Williams, former port director, are also said to be considering running on stickers.

Telegraphic replies were being received by the State committee today from their questionnaires sent to 360 city and town ward committee chairmen. The majority of those heard from declared they would stand by the committee in any action to oust Burrell.

The State auditor today put a force of men into Burrell's office and began an examination, expected to last ten days. This action was suggested by Governor Coolidge.

LURED BY WOMAN AND ROBBED

Frederick E. Jones, Civil Engineer, Is Beaten by Thieves in Belmont

Frederick E. Jones, fifty-one, of No. 53 Willow avenue, West Somerville, a civil engineer for the city of Somerville, was lured to a lonely section of Belmont by a woman and robbed by her accomplices, after they had beaten him into unconsciousness with an automobile wrench.

Edward Aronson, twenty-three, of No. 12 Copeland street, a chauffeur for a Boston motor cab company, was arrested following the holdup, charged with highway robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon. He was arraigned in the Cambridge court today.

The woman and a male accomplice escaped before the arrival of the police.

Jones, in company with his woman companion, whom he met in Boston, went to Belmont in a motor car, which, according to the police, had been followed from Boston by men known to the woman.

At the corner of Prospect and Pleasant streets, Belmont, Jones was felled from behind. He was rendered unconscious and robbed as he lay prostrated on the ground.

His cries for help were heard by Patrolman Shaughnessy, who arrived in time to see two men standing over Jones. One of the men started to run away as Shaughnessy approached. The patrolman struggled with this man, struck him on the head with his club and then started toward Aronson. He was able to hold Aronson but the other man and Jones' woman companion escaped.

Jones was rushed to the Waltham Hospital. Seventeen stitches were required to close the ugly wound in his head. It is feared that he will lose the sight of one eye.

SHERBURNE NOT OUT TO HEAD LEGION

Brigadier General John H. Sherburne stated today that he was not, nor has he been, a candidate for commander of the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion. General Sherburne declared that personal reasons prevented his entering the field.

MYSTERY IN FEE PAID LAWYERS

An attempt to block the Ponzi receivership proceedings was revealed today, when Attorney Daniel V. McIsaac of counsel for Charles Ponzi filed a petition denying that his client had committed an act of bankruptcy and demanding a jury trial.

If a jury trial were ordered in compliance with this petition, which was filed in the United States District Court, and Ponzi declared solvent, the receivership proceedings would be suspended. The question of Ponzi's solvency would be decided by the jury.

Closely following this important development in the affairs of the erstwhile money juggler, came the announcement from the Attorney-General's department that another arrest on the warrants secured by the State would be made today.

At the same time Governor Coolidge stated that so far as he was concerned the Ponzi case was closed, the matter now being in the hands of the courts.

Another feature was the statement by Henry H. Chmielinski, president of the Hanover Trust Company, that he had no knowledge of the bank having been authorized by Ponzi to pay $25,000 to Attorneys Melsaac and Daniel H. Coakley, William McNary, treasurer and chairman of the directors of the bank, could not be located.

Meantime Federal Auditor Pride went to the East Cambridge Jail and with Ponzi examined books and papers of the Securities Exchange Company in an attempt to untangle some of the many snarls. It was also hoped that Ponzi would refresh his memory, so that Saturday's proceedings would not be duplicated at tomorrow's hearing.

DEFAULT WARRANT OUT.

In the Municipal Court Ponzi was defaulted when his name was called to answer to charges of larceny preferred by the State. Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz and Attorney Melsaac waived regret. A default warrant was issued, so that if Ponzi were released under Federal bonds, he could be arrested by the municipal authorities.

During the forenoon a conference was held by Receivers William R. Sears, John Forbes Perkins and Edward A. Thurston, at which they discussed conditions and made plans for tomorrow.

It is understood that Ponzi's attitude of defiance will not be tolerated, and that no method will be overlooked in order to secure all information as to any hidden assets.

It was also disclosed today that Miss Lucy Meli, Ponzi's confidential secretary, will take the stand tomorrow prepared to "tell all."

Miss Meli, who has not yet recovered from the shock of the revelations concerning her employer, is one of the most important witnesses to be heard by the receivers, and her readiness to clear up much of the mystery which thus far has enshrouded the case indicates that developments of sensational nature are forthcoming.

The arrest of another of Ponzi's Army of agents is expected hourly. Police inspectors, armed with a warrant, have started a search for this man who is said to have taken in thousands of dollars in the name of the dapper Italian.

The part played by Ponzi's agents is rapidly assuming a criminal character, it is said, and further arrests of these 16 per cent. fiscal agents are looked for.

A late and important development of the case was that because of Ponzi's evasive answers and defiant attitude when pressed for detailed information, minute "cross sections" will be made by the government of his affairs, so that practically every step of the way he will be confronted with figures which will require absolute affirmation or denial, as to their accuracy.

WILL DISSECT ASSETS.

In addition to the audit which has been conducted by Certified Accountant Edwin L. Pride, who has a comprehensive idea of both the assets and liabilities of the getrich-quick operator, the receivers are going to take the assets and liabilities and dissect them to the bone in order to be able to differentiate between fact and fiction.

They realize that in an office conducted as was that maintained by Ponzi, there was every possibility for errors and inaccuracies to be made that would have the effect of completely misleading the most painstaking examiner as to the actual nature of individual transactions.

Therefore, the accounts of both the debit and credit sides are to be inspected almost microscopically, in order to determine what Ponzi really owes and what interest he actually has with which to meet these obligations.

Brooklyn Man, Here on Fort Victoria, Tells Plight of Jews in Southern Russia

Two of the 285 saloon passengers who landed in Boston today from the Furness-Warren Line steamship Fort Victoria were Barnett Brody of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his father-in-law, Isaac Smith, whom Brody found in a trench near the former city of Lockwich in the province of Minsk, Russia.

His father-in-law Brody said, when found was half clothed, shoeless and hungry, the prevailing condition of residents of the Minsk district. The city of Lockwich, formerly with 18,000 inhabitants, now has less than 200, he said, and most of the buildings have been razed by continuous warfare.

Brody reported that as he was leaving the city the Reds entered the other end of the town and he believes captured Dr. Isadore Mogil, of No. 702 East 176th street, New York City, who was there on a similar mission. He attempted to communicate with Dr. Mogil later, he said, without success, which led to the belief that he had been made a Russian prisoner.

The plight of the Jews in that section of Europe, he declared, was equally bad regardless of whether the Poles or Russians were in control. With ten other Americans, he said, he organized a committee to assist the American Consul at Warsaw and all were arrested by Polish police on the charge of grafting. The truth, was he asserted, that the committee's work was interfering with the graft of the police department.

The Fort Victoria completed the journey from the dock at Liverpool to Boston in eight days and two hours, said to be remarkably fast for a vessel of her class.

Among the passengers were P. K. Mohun of Brookline, president of the Victorian Club and the British Charitable Society, and Mrs. Mohun, returning from a pleasure trip to England. T. F. Porter, the British consul general at Boston, Miss Estelle Orne, daughter of Salem, returning after three years in England where she was assistant in the offices of Louis M. Tuck, a Peabody leather man, and Mrs. Franklin J. Hurley, an English girl who was married to Ensign Hurley of the American navy during the war. She will join him at Atlantic City. Two of Mrs. Hurley's sisters also married American service men and are now living in Baltimore. She was accompanied by Miss Elsie Kitchen.

GERMANS WANT TO MEET LLOYD GEORGE

Paris, Aug. 23.—A delegation of German officials, headed by Konstantin Fehrenbach, the Chancellor, has arrived in Switzerland and has officially requested an interview with Premier Lloyd George at Lucerne this evening, said a Lucerne dispatch to L'Information. Premier Lloyd George held another conference today with Premier Giolitti of Italy.

Colonial Express Is 32 Minutes Late Leaving

The Colonial Express, crack train between Boston and Washington, upon which hundreds depend to make connections for the South, is supposed to leave the South Station at 8 a. m., Eastern standard time.

This morning it ambled easily out of Boston at 8:32 a. m.

The extra thirty-two minutes apparently were spent in conducting a still hunt for the engine, which had failed to arrive after the train was made up.

Cards Tell King George He Will Die in U. S.

London, Aug. 23.—"You will live to be seventy-eight. You will die in California. Within another twenty years you will have given up your throne to the Prince of Wales. You will become the father-in-law of a chorus girl. I do not know which of your sons will marry her."

Such is the fortune of King George of England as revealed by a deck of cards. His Majesty was told his fortune by the wife of one of the sailors on the royal yacht Victoria. She is said to have told the fortune of every monarch and ex-monarch in Europe. The King sat for his fortune as a matter of diversion on a cruise.

"If I don't die in England, I would like to die at sea," was his only comment at the finish of his sitting.

PONZI'S RIVALS FACE GRILLING

Will Be Examined by Receiver in Federal Building; Auditor to Examine Books

John E. Hannigan, receiver for the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company, branding the investment firm as a "fraud pure and simple," was to appoint today a certified public accountant to make a thorough audit of the company's books.

Hannigan states the services of an auditor are imperative in view of the complex records of the concern which indicate transfers and re-transfers of money from one account to another.

DEFENDANTS FACE GRILL.

Tomorrow or Wednesday the three defendants, Charles M. Brightwell, Raymond Meyers and his brother Charles Fred Myers, who are held on larceny charges in Charles Street Jail in default of bonds of $50,000 each, will be questioned in the Federal Building by Hannigan. Others connected with the alleged swindle will be interrogated.

Efforts were being made today to establish what relationship existed between the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company and the Longton Oil & Gas System, Inc. Until a few days ago the latter concern had offices at No. 25 Huntington avenue, when the business was transferred to State street.

Brightwell was president and treasurer of both companies and since a check for $364.04 has been found indicating the transfer of funds from the Old Colony firm to the corporation, it is believed a probe will reveal some interesting instances of juggling of monies.

STOOD TO MAKE MILLIONS.

"I believe that if this company had been allowed to continue, its treasury would have received millions instead of thousands," declared Receiver Hannigan, "and, furthermore, I feel certain that, with all that has been said and done about wildcat financial schemes in the last ten days, there are thousands of persons who would knock one another down in the mad scramble to invest their savings in this pernicious get-rich-quick scheme."

MANNIX TO VISIT LORD MAYOR OF CORK

Maryland's 'Insult' to Women Must Go

Baltimore, Aug. 23.—Maryland suffragists, having come into their heritage of political equality, have now turned against the motto on the State coat of arms, a heraldic bit of work done long ago for the Calvert and Crossland families. It reads: "Fatti Maschli, Parole Femine," which is translated as "Deeds are masculine, words feminine."

"This is all wrong," say the suffragist leaders, including Mrs. Charles F. Elliott, Mrs. Calvin Gabrielle, Mrs. Charles Gelo, Mrs. Emma White and others. "It does not fit. It was written by men for men and is un-American."

All the suffragists will hear of the motto's defects on Monday, when the matter will be put before their executive committee. They may want to substitute "Sic Semper Tyrannis," Virginia's motto, one declared.

London, Aug. 23.—The Russian Communists in control of Moscow have adopted a resolution calling upon all members of the party to mobilize immediately for the support of the western (Polish) and southern (Crimean) fronts, said a dispatch from Moscow this afternoon.

Nine Important Cities Recaptured by the Poles

By International News Service.

Warsaw, Aug. 23.—The recapture of nine important cities from the Russians is reported by the Polish War Office. The Poles are advancing on Bielostock, Russian great headquarters in the field.

The official statement says:

"Mlava, Rozan, Przasnysz, Ostrof, Bielsk, Brest Litovsk and Cholm have been taken by the Poles. We are advancing upon Bielostock. We strongly hold the Bug River line."

The communique shows that the Russians have been pushed back till their lines southeast of the city are now 150 miles removed from the capital. On the northwestern side the Russians are eighty miles away, on the north side sixty miles away and on the northeast 100 miles.

Poles and Reds Continue Hard Fighting on Front East of Warsaw

divisions, commanded by Prince Gajahan have been cut off between the Vistula River and East Prussia, and news of their surrender is momentarily expected.

Hard fighting continues on the front east of Warsaw.

"The battle of Warsaw" has ended. The Polish counter offensive, which not only stopped the Russians but rolled them back all along the line, is swinging into its second phase as the Poles have begun to meet stronger resistance from the Reds.

The Polish advance has slowed down, owing to lack of Polish cavalry to follow up their recent victories.

The Polish government has been unable to communicate with Minsk and thus notify the Polish armistice and peace delegations of the victory over the Russians. The government has been getting its Minsk news by picking up wireless messages from Vienna.

The more hot-headed advisers of the government are clamoring for a decisive military victory before peace is made. The cry of "On to Vilna" and "On to Kovel" is now heard.

CONSUMER ISN'T GETTING BENEFIT OF SLUMP IN SUGAR MARKET

RETAILERS KEEPING PRICE UP

Some Stores Are Selling at 22 Cents, but Big Drop Is Expected

Although the wholesale sugar market is demoralized and prices falling rapidly, the householder has not received the benefit of it, in investigation of stores revealed today.

Two of the large chain store systems were offering sugar at 22 cents a pound, while two other big grocery firms with several branches each were charging 23 cents.

How long it will take for the slump to hit the retail markets was a subject of much conjecture in the grocery trade today. Refiners are known to have large stocks on hand, and several jobbers who invested heavily in the anticipation of sugar going to even 25 and 40 cents during the Winter have been caught by the demands of bankers for payment of the loans advanced on the sugar stocks.

SELLING AT 17 CENTS.

One firm has quoted sugar at 17 cents a pound retail and this was regarded as a bid for customers of even lower prices. The demands of the canning season are said not to have met the expectations of the sugar speculators.

With the public refusing to pay the high prices demanded and the bankers pressing the sugar gougers for payment of loans, it is believed by market men who have not participated in this speculation that it is only a question of time when the jobbers and refiners will be forced to offer their sugar stocks at almost any price the public is willing to pay.

HAVEN'T TOUCHED BOTTOM.

Sugar prices have not touched bottom, according to a statement by the Department of Justice issued in news dispatches from Washington. Appeals of refiners and manufacturers for the department's intervention to stop further slump in prices, it was said, would be ignored. Their losses are already heavy.

Consumers were advised against hoarding. Those who buy cautiously to meet their usual needs, it was said, would probably be rewarded later by lower prices.

Government commercial experts today were convinced that the sugar shortage scare created several months ago was artificial and resulted from manipulation.

IRELAND SWEPT BY CRIME WAVE

Official Reports Cite 100 Cases of Fires and Assassination Over Sunday

By DANIEL O'CONNELL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, Aug. 22.—More than 100 reports of incendiarism and attacks against government officials and public property have been received at Dublin Castle over the week end.

Not since the great flare up of violence at Easter-tide, when the Sinn Fein celebrated the anniversary of the Dublin uprising with the torch, have so many disorders been reported.

A two-hour battle was reported from County Cork, in which several policeman were wounded.

The policemen were travelling in automobiles which were ambushed. The cars drove off in military formation and there was a heavy exchange of firing before the fighting ended.

HUNDREDS SEE KILLING.

The most sensational killing was that of District Inspector Swanzy of Outine Irish constabulary at Lisburn, who was accused by the Sinn Fein of organizing the raid on the home of Lord Mayor McCurtain last July. McCurtain was killed as he came to the door of his home.

Inspector Swanzy's name was coupled with the murder in the verdict of the coroner's jury. Immediately following this he was transferred to Lisburn, a Unionist stronghold.

As he was coming from church, with his sister and his mother, an automobile swung up to the curb beside him. Five men leaped out, shooting as they leaped. Swanzy was killed almost instantly. Hundreds looked on. All the men who took part in the shooting escaped.

Fires that started in Lisburn during the rioting that followed the assassination of Inspector Swanzy raged all night.

The whole business district of Lisburn was in ashes today. Although buildings all around the Catholic Church were destroyed, soldiers saved the religious edifice.

POLICE SHOOT UP TOWN.

A sergeant of police was shot and killed at Athlone. Another sergeant and an accompanying constable were killed at Dunlavin in Cork County.

At Minrush, Detective Chanlen was killed. Lt. Kildare, a police patrol car was ambushed. The sergeant in charge was killed, one of the policemen was wounded, and the others escaped. Four police were ambushed at Brandon in Cork County. They escaped after a fight.

At Dundalk, just south of Lisburn, a policeman was killed and two others were wounded. In Galway the police and military shot up the town and set fire to several saloons.

Numerous other incidents of less seriousness were reported. The cessation is attributed to a rise in Irish feeling due to the passage by the British government of the Coercion Act.

Form Company to Put Ex-King on Throne

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 23.—For the first time in history a great stock company is being formed to re-establish a former king upon his throne, the one-time monarch in the present instance being Constantine of Greece, who is now exile in Switzerland.

Revelation of the plans in behalf of Constantine was made today by Greek residents of Paris who alleged that millions of dollars from the vast American fortune of the former Mrs. William B. Leeds are being sought to finance the movement. Mrs. Leeds recently married ex-King Constantine's younger brother.

M. Streit, former minister of finance in the Greek cabinet, who accompanied Constantine into exile in Switzerland, is credited with organizing the stock company for the protection of royalty. Mr. Streit is said to be soliciting subscriptions from Greeks in all classes of life, from the millionaires in Europe to the Greek toothacks and waiters in the United States.

M. Streit's idea is said to be the collection of money from Constantine's sympathizers for a great propaganda campaign against M. Venizelos. M. Venizelos is premier of Greece but in reality he is the ruling power at Athens. The small subscribers to the "Constantine fund" are promised their money back "when and if" the ex-King is returned to power. The larger subscribers are promised financial concessions.

Friends of the former Mrs. Leeds strenuously deny that she will contribute a single dollar to the "Constantine fund." They assert that her sole desire is to live quietly in Switzerland with her husband and that she has no aspirations for court life at Athens. Her husband is at present a political refugee, but if Constantine were restored he could return to Athens a high royal personage.

PROTEST ARREST OF MANNIX

Thousands at Greater Boston Meetings Hear Speakers Denounce Britain's Act

Great Britain was roundly denounced for its action in seizing Archbishop Mannix at various mass meetings held in Greater Boston, the largest of which was held on Boston Common, where 10,000 sympathizers with the Irish cause gathered to protest England's "piracy and assassination of liberty."

Former Mayor Curley, Acting Mayor Moriarty, School Committeeman O'Connor and Judge Wall of New Jersey were the speakers. The gathering met under the auspices of the United Irish Societies of Boston with the Friends of Irish Freedom, the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters, the Hibernians and the Irish County Associations participating. Resolutions of protest were passed.

Jeremiah J. O'Leary of New York was the principal speaker at a protest meeting held on Cambridge Field where 800 persons applauded his comparison of Eamon De Valera's mission in this country with that of Benjamin Franklin to Ireland in the 18th century. Resolutions protesting against the seizure of Archbishop Mannix were adopted.

At Stone Park, Dedham, 1,000 persons united in a protest against the British treatment of the Australian prelate. The meeting was held under the auspices of the William Pearse Branch, Friends of Irish Freedom.

More than 5,000 persons attended the meeting held in Lincoln Park, Somerville, and at a meeting held at Ocean Park, Lynn, 3,000 persons cheered an attack against England's seizure of the prelate.

GIRL SLASHES MAN'S THROAT

Resented Attentions of Another Stage Favorite in Broadway Cafe

New York, Aug. 23.—The murmur of buzz of gossipers in Broadway's theatrical district revealed today the fact that the incandescent district has another scandal. Two actresses and a familiar masculine habitue of the palaces of pleasure comprise the cast.

According to the reports:

Jean Verne of Chicago, twenty-eight and married, sat at a table in the Cafe De Paris. His companion was Faye Gifford, of "Listen Lester" and the "Frivolities of 1920."

Madeline Smith of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," stepped quickly to their table and, without any note of warning, according to other diners, slashed Verne across the throat and fell in a dead faint. The man and his lady have been quickly, covered the tiny streak of red showing above his collar, and hurried his companion out and into a taxi before more than those sitting at tables immediately adjacent had realized what had happened.

The orchestra struck up a blatant dance number, the dance was on and the incident was forgotten.

BANK BANDITS ESCAPE POSSE

Search Springfield Swamp in Vain for Five Men Who Stole $10,000

Springfield, Aug. 23.—Thirty-six hours' search through the sixteen acres of woods for the five bandits who held up the National and Freestone Savings Banks, in Portland, Conn., Saturday, and secured between $10,000 and $15,000, has proved fruitless.

City police and armed civilians have abandoned the hunt. It is believed the robbers made their getaway under cover of darkness Saturday night. Massachusetts and Connecticut state police have taken over the pursuit and will prosecute it vigorously.

New York detectives arrived yesterday and identified the robbers' car as one stolen from the Princess garage of New York City.

The robbers were last seen about four o'clock Saturday afternoon crossing a swamp and carrying a satchel. One of them appeared to be in distress and kept lagging behind the others. It is thought he is wounded, as a bloody handkerchief and coat were found near the abandoned automobile.

RURAL CENSUS DECREASES

Food Producers Dwindle in Proportion to Population, Says U. S. Bureau

Washington, Aug. 23.—America's food is being produced by a diminishing proportion of its population, according to estimates secured from the Census Bureau today.

The 1920 census already indicates a falling off in rural population and increase in urban population, while experts believe that the final figures will show that the increase in farm acreage has not kept pace with the increase in population.

Estimates place the 1920 population of the United States at about 105,000,000 people, or 14 per cent. more than in 1910.

It is also estimated that 49 per cent. of the population is urban and 51 per cent. rural, it being understood that any town under 2,500 population is rural for statistical purposes.

Under the 1910 census 46.3 per cent. of the population was urban and 53.7 per cent. was rural, and if the 1920 estimates are correct there is a decided drift from the farms to the city.

While the percentage of farm acreage during the decade is not known, it is believed that it will be greater than that of 1910, when it was only 4.8 per cent.

New York, Aug. 23.—Fenton T. Bott, president of the American National Association, Masters of Dancing, which opened its annual convention here today, continued his attack on the "shimmy" and Jazz music in his address opening the meeting.

He introduced a resolution calling on the Methodist church to cease inclusion in its "Book of Discipline" an attack on dancing, asking it to take cognizance of repeated requests that the ban on dancing be lifted.

He also urged motion picture producers, manufacturers of phonograph records and automatic rolls, and dance hall proprietors to see that the styles approved by the National Association are adhered to and that good rhythmic music rather than Jazz is used for dancing scenes or records.

BLAME DRIVER IN DEATH OF 8

Failed to Heed Red Signal at Railroad Crossing, Says Gate Tender

Camden, N. J., Aug. 23.—An investigation was called today to fix the blame for the auto-bus accident at Fairview last night, in which eight persons, including four children, were killed, and five were injured when the bus was struck by an electric train. Three of the injured may die, including the bus driver.

The bus, operated by the R. & O. Transportation Company was filled with persons who had just left the Camden ferry. Safety gates at the crossing had been out of order all week. The crossing watchman said the chauffeur, who had halted to let a train pass on the Reading tracks 100 yards distant, failed to heed his red signal. The bus was struck squarely by the train.

BOY DIES UNDER CAR WHEELS

Laurence Nee of South Boston Killed Near Fore River Yards

Laurence Nee, seventeen years old, of No. 47 L street, South Boston, was instantly killed today when he was run over by a special train car bound from Neponset to the Fore River yards.

Young Nee, who was employed at the yards, was maimed to such an extent that identification was made possible only by his number plate, which was found in his clothing.

The police, who are investigating, said that several different versions of the manner in which the boy met his death, were told. It was thought that he was either riding on the couplings between the two cars of that he climbed through a window and fell under the wheels.

Hammond of South Hanover and Albert Bradford of Plympton, collided on Perry street. Miss Harriet Davis of Plympton, who was in the Bradford machine was cut about the face, one arm was badly strained and one leg cut. Mrs. Eva Morse, in the same machine, suffered bruises and a sprained back. Mrs. Hammond, who was overcome by shock, was the only person affected in the Hammond car.

The replies will guide the commissioners in making plans to prevent a shortage.

MORGAN'S INCORPORATED EMPLOYES AT BEACH

All thoughts of business and business cares were taboo at the outing of the Morgan's Incorporated at Pemberton yesterday. The entire working force of the concern were the guests of the management. Everything possible had been done by H. L. Rogel and A. B. Cohen to see that the guests enjoyed the outing. The trip to Pemberton and return was made in motor cars.

100,000 to Witness American Swim

Rep. T. J. Driscoll of Roxbury, Who Will Officiate at the Boston American Swim Saturday.

As the time draws near for the big swim of the Boston American to be held in the Charles River Basin Saturday afternoon public interest grows greater.

It is predicted 100,000 persons will take advantage of the opportunity afforded of seeing the swimmers battle through the water for championship honors.

The course selected for the race, a distance of one and one-half miles and 200 feet, is regarded by athletes as the best in the country for conducting a swimming event. Officials of the race, which is run under the sanction of the New England Amateur Athletic Association, will be announced this week. Through courtesy of Representative Timothy J. Driscoll of Ward 13, who will be one of the officials, several prominent Roxbury girls will give exhibitions of high diving.

Handsome prizes will be awarded the first five winners, and every girl who finishes will be given a diploma. In addition the first girl to cross the tape will win the title of New England champion for 1920. The race will start at 2 p. m. Entries close Wednesday noon.

U. S. MAY CURB AUTO THEFTS

Insurance Men Say Traffic of Gang Costs New England Million a Year

Federal authority may be invoked to halt the interstate traffic in stolen automobiles.

Reports of theft investigations by the Automobile Underwriters Detective Bureau, an automobile organization, have aroused automobile insurance men to exert every effort to put a halt to the growing business in stolen cars.

Maurice M. Veazie, of the Boston Mutual Insurance Company, in charge of the automobile business of that concern, declared today Federal aid would be sought by insurance concerns in the campaign to stop thievery. He stated that while Federal law exists, carrying heavy penalties for interstate thieving, this authority, as far as local insurance men can recall, has never been invoked to aid in putting a stop to such business.

"In connection with the State and county investigations, a Federal probe could be conducted to great advantage," said Mr. Veazie.

"The Federal law provides that prosecutions may be brought in any State in which stolen automobiles are taken for sale or in transit for disposal. I believe that Federal action would go a long way to stop the interstate traffic in stolen cars, especially in conjunction with the investigations already underway in Suffolk, Essex, Middlesex counties and that reported to be pursued by Attorney-General Allen."

The Federal law carries a penalty of from five to ten years' imprisonment for any person found guilty of knowingly selling or otherwise trafficking in stolen cars.

Surf Bathers Demand Oil-less Brine

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 22.—Mass meetings are being held by bathers, fishermen, bathing house proprietors and owners of private estates on the waterfront of this popular resort to protest against the heavy scum of oil which is spoiling their sport.

Primarily, they want to know why this menace should be greater this Summer than ever before, with the exception of a few weeks following the torpedoing of the tanker Kellogg in 1917.

Both Federal and State officials are charged with the responsibility for the condition. But, whoever the responsibility may rest, the whole coast is "fed up" and out for satisfaction.

MANY RAILROAD MEN HURT

One Boston Man Among the Victims of Attacks at New Haven Yards

New York, Aug. 23.—Four yardmen employed by the New Haven railroad are in Lincoln Hospital, two probably with fractured skulls, and more than a score of other railroad workers are being treated at home, as the result of a series of attacks upon yardmen of the Mott Haven and Oak Point freight yards within the last forty-eight hours.

The assailants, according to the police, were former employes of the New Haven, who quit during the "outlaw" strike.

Following several attacks yesterday, Captain Sweeney assigned a score of reserves to the yards, and in addition sent several detectives to co-operate with the railroad police.

The four employes at Lincoln Hospital are: Nicholas Cantanasel of Hoboken, Hugh Humphries of Boston, Joseph Kelleher of New Haven and Wilfred Roberts of New York.

The attacks occurred outside the yards. The victims say that usually there were about five men in the party of assailants and that invariably they were armed only with blackjacks.

A singular feature is that, although the assailants evidently knew the victims, none of the attackers has been identified.

$800,000 PRICE FOR AMERICANS

State Department to Demand Mexico Free Four Held by Revolting General

Washington, Aug. 23.—Immediately details concerning the alleged capture of four Americans, one named Healy, and an Englishman named Johnson, by Pedro Zamora, a revolting Mexican general in Jalisco, are received here, the State Department, it was stated today, will demand that the provisional government of Mexico effect their release.

The Americans are each reported held for $200,000 ransom and Johnson for $50,000 ransom.

The State Department has not as yet been officially informed as to these captures. The State of Jalisco, it was pointed out, is in revolt against the De la Huerta government. Mexican authorities here state that De la Huerta sent a battalion of soldiers to put down the revolt and they expect these soldiers will aid in releasing the five prisoners.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The State Department was advised that the American embassy at Mexico City is investigating the reported kidnaping of four American mining men, one American woman and a fifth man, supposedly a British subject, by the Bandit Zamora, in the State of Jalisco.

The embassy reported that the story of the kidnaping was not confirmed and offered no further details.

"NIGHT BEFORE" GOVERNS NEXT DAY, SAYS PASTOR

"The Night Before" governs one's attitude toward the following day, Rev. Edward T. Sullivan told an audience at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul. For that reason, he declared, the Saviour would disapprove of theatres, roof gardens and other worldly amusements on Saturday nights. "People recovering from the night before," he said, "can be in no mood for a proper observance of Sunday." Their mental employment, he asserted, should be one of quiet, rest and reverence. He approved the Puritan idea that the Sabbath began at sundown Saturday.

HOTEL GUESTS SLEPT AS FIREMEN WORK

Firemen from the Bulfinch street station, under direction of Captain William Quigley, extinguished a threatening fire in the airshaft leading through the centre of Hotel Majestic, in Bowdoin square, with few of the guests knowing that the fire fighters were in the building. The blaze, when discovered by a watchman, was eating its way through a window casing on the second floor.

Bathe of Boston and Howard Coxe of New York.

AUTOIST SERVED WITH SUMMONS IN CELL

Lawrence, Aug. 23.—Edward Hussell of Salem, N. H., was served with a summons in his cell in the local police station, as a result of civil action brought against him in connection with an auto accident here. Two hours after his arrest on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Constable Sidney Cohen of this city served the summons. Patrick E. Hardy who brings the civil action, reported to the police that Hussell's auto collided with his machine, injuring a passenger, Joseph Conroy, and damaging the car.

FRENCH CROPS FAIL; U. S. MUST AGAIN FEED EUROPE

Paris, Aug. 23.—Proving that the United States must feed Europe for at least another year, the French crop statistics just published, revealed a grain deficit for 1920 of more than 50,000,000 bushels.

The United States is now the sole hope as Argentina has banned exportation. Great Britain monopolizes the Canadian supply and Russia as a grain source is hopeless. Italy must import 65,000,000 bushels and it is revealed that similar needs exist throughout Europe.

ONE DEAD, TWO WOUNDED IN DANCE HALL FIGHT

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 23.—A police official was shot and killed, a pedestrian fatally wounded and a negro is believed to have been shot during an encounter which started in a dance hall when the negro insisted on dancing with white girls.

Chief of Police Matthews of Walnut Cove and Walter Martin of Madison, who was placed under arrest, were shot while en route to the mayor's office. The negro was trailed two miles by blood stains, but escaped in a thickly wooded swamp. A sheriff's posse, aided by bloodhounds, are searching the vicinity.

NEW ENGLAND TRADE REVIEW

Mill Curtailment Forces Thousands Out of Work

Textile and Shoe Plants Close Until After Labor Day; Many Factors Make for Optimism

Outstanding in the business situation of New England today is the widespread curtailment in textile mills and shoe factories. As a result many thousands of persons are out of work. The opinion seems to prevail that the woolen mills will resume operations around Labor Day. The chief reasons for the closings are the tight money market and boycott of the public against high prices.

Up to the present time the cotton mills have been able to operate and give employment to thousands, but now reports are coming to hand of heavy reductions in that industry—a leader in this section of the country. The cotton mills today are estimated to be running at about eighty per cent. capacity, which is a big drop in six months' time.

COTTON CLOTHS LOWER.

During the past few weeks there has been a disposition of the trade not to place orders for cotton goods. The banks have been forcing merchants to trim sail and build up their working capital. They are holding off in orders expecting still lower prices.

When the market was rising every one was in the market, but now no one wants to get caught in a falling market. Measured in values per pound, there has been an average decline of thirty-three per cent. from prices obtaining at the beginning of June, bringing the present level down to the war-time maxima.

Woolen mills were "hit" several weeks before cotton trade. In fact, wool dealers inform the American that a reaction from the lethargy in the wool market is now setting in. More inquiries are coming in.

William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, was asked to comment on the statement of Governor Cox that the mills were curtailing to keep prices up. Mr. Wood said:

"A statement by Governor Cox or anybody else that the woolen mills remain closed for any other reason than a lack of orders is too ridiculous to answer." He characterized the situation as "much improved," although he could not promise a reopening before Labor Day.

OTHER MILLS CUT DOWN.

Two mills in Woonsocket, R. I., have thrown some 800 persons out of work. About 2,000 were laid off by curtailment at the Atlantic Mills in Olneyville, R. I. This plant will operate on a five-day week beginning September 7. The Pepperell Mills of Biddeford and York Mills of Saco, in Maine, will close for a week beginning September 4, and 4,000 employes will take a "vacation." In Lowell nearly 10,000 hands will be idle next Saturday, when some of the factories there will close for a week.

Shoe factories in Lynn, Haverhill, Salem and elsewhere are slowly resuming. This was, indeed, the quietest Summer in the shoe and leather and tanning trades for many a year. The break in shoe prices was reflected down the line to the price of cattle on Western ranches. The shoe industry is thoroughly liquidated. It is idle to believe that the shoe business will stay in the present doldrums long, for 105,000,000 people in this country alone are stamping on shoe leather daily.

FOOD AND LUMBER HIGH.

Cut-price sales in shoes and clothing are still the rage. Unsettlement in these lines has slowed up the dye markets. One by one other necessities are taking the toboggan. Food prices, with the exception of seasoned articles, are still holding their high perch at retail, though some break in wholesale prices is reported by the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Labor. Retail prices should follow wholesale quotations.

Perhaps the greatest sensation in the food market today is the collapse in sugar prices. The banks helped the break by tightening credit on large stocks and the public boycott has finally forced the sugar hoarders to unload. Today the wholesale price is around 16 cents, compared with 32 cents a few weeks back. This is cheering news to the housewife, but the big refiners are taking losses running into millions of dollars.

As a contrast, building costs fail to show any sign of weakening. In fact, prices are a little firmer. The high cost of building materials, especially cement, is directly due to the inability of the railroads to transport.

OPTIMISTIC FACTORS.

That the long-heralded "readjustment" has arrived is now evident. The stock markets have been discounting commodity liquidation and smaller earnings of corporations by a steady decline in prices of securities. Many issues are now selling to yield purchasers as high as ten per cent. on the investment, during the past ten days or so there has been a stronger market.

There are many reasons why business should be good for a long time. The crops are unusually large. History tells us that big crops mean big business. Alarmists have been spreading propaganda that this year's large crops would be an insurmountable obstacle to the banks.

Bankers are now giving out the comforting news that the crops will be safely handled without serious strain on the banks. In fact, a Chicago banker of note said recently that the worst is over in the crop strain. The Federal Reserve Board was well aware last Spring that the crops would have to be handled and preparations were accordingly made to facilitate the movement. Thus one of the biggest drawbacks to business has been routed.

The increase in railroad rates is yet to go into effect. Nobody likes to see a boost in railroad rates, because it means a proportionate increase in the cost of living. In the present instance, however, an increase was imperative, so that the roads can purchase needed equipment and give some semblance of service. This is another optimistic factor.

MORE FUEL FOR N. E.

The fuel situation in New England has improved considerably, although this section is not "out of the woods" by a long ways. However, there is satisfaction in knowing that officials Washington has finally awakened to New England's serious plight and every effort is now being made to rush coal here.

There does not seem to be any diminution in new incorporations in Massachusetts. At the State House, it was learned by a reporter of the American that in the first seven months of 1920, 2,084 new companies took out papers, as compared with 1,461 in the corresponding period of 1919.

Bank clearings through the Boston Clearing House are still far ahead of last year, indicating much activity in business.

More Gold from England

The steamship Aquitania landed sixty cases of British gold in New York at the close of last week, but the amount of the consignment was not stated. It is reported from London that India is now buying gold instead of silver and bullion is in special demand. The monthly gold sale totals nearly $30,000,000 and the current quotation is 94 rupees and 11 annas to the sovereign.

America's Fisheries—An Undeveloped Industry of Great Possibilities

In its rich fisheries the United States possesses an undeveloped natural resource which needs only organization, capital and brains to make it one of the nation's greatest industries.

The American fisheries have hitherto been conducted so inefficiently that fish as an important food staple has failed to win the nation-wide popularity and market it deserves. So crude has been the organization of our fisheries, particularly as regards distribution, that fish in sufficient quantities and of good quality has been unobtainable regularly by much of our inland population.

The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries states that there is a huge unsatisfied demand for fish, especially in the Middle West and South. An enormously rich field awaits the wide-awake concern which enters the fish industry properly organized and equipped. In England, where twenty-five years ago the fisheries were in as chaotic a state as here now, more capital is profitably employed in the fisheries than in the American beef industry. The American beef supply is decreasing, and the consumption of fish will constantly grow.

The problems of handling and distributing fish and beef are identical, and progressive concerns are meeting them the right way, equipped with ample capital, fleets of steam trawlers, big central plants and excellent merchandising systems. All honor to these companies for their far-sighted progressiveness!

U. S. ATHLETES HOLD COMMANDING LEAD AS OLYMPICS NEAR END

2 EVENTS REMAIN ON CARD

Track and Field Stars Rest Up After Cross Country and 1,600-Metre Relay

By "TED" MEREDITH,
American Quarter and Half-Mile Champion and Famous Olympic Winner.

Antwerp, Aug. 23.—Two events remain to be finished in the track and field games of the seventh Olympiad, but to all intents and purposes everything has been finished. So far as the United States is concerned this is almost certainly so, for there is little chance of United States athletes winning any of the remaining contests, although points undoubtedly will be added to the total.

Today the cross country run and the 1,600-metre relay race will be cleaned off the program and the games will stand finished. Boxing and wrestling will not be started in earnest this week and from there the games will go on into events of less importance. Swimming contests also will be started this week.

American Athletes Have Healthy Lead

America enters the last lap far ahead of its nearest competitor, having scored 202 points in the 24 events now finished. Sweden apparently has clinched second place for she now has 93 points against 87 for Finland and probably will be able to hold her own today.

England landed fourth with 77 points, France and Italy were tied for fifth with 27 each, South Africa was in sixth place with 24, Canada 20, Denmark, 9; Esthonia, 8; New Zealand, 3; Norway, Belgium, Czech-Slovakia, 2 each and Luxemburg, 1.

More records were smashed in the events held yesterday. Hannes Kolehmainen, the Finnish-American, cut down the time for the marathon by finishing the course in two hours, 32 minutes, 35 4-5 seconds, despite a driving rain that fell throughout the journey.

He ran for Finland because of the ruling that prevents a man switching from one country to another.

The American sprinters broke the record for the 400-metre relay race, finishing in 42 1-5 seconds, two-fifths of a second better than the time made by the German team at Stockholm in 1912.

Isaman took second place only after a struggle with Valerio of Italy, who was third, and who threw several handsprings and cartwheels to show that he had not been fagged completely by the long grind. Isaman showed a great burst of speed at the finish.

Seventh Place Is America's Best

Others, in the order they finished, were Bronn of Belgium, Toomposkoko of Finland, Sofus of Denmark and Organ of United States. The next American to finish was Carl Lindner, who got eleventh place. Mellor was twelfth.

Until five miles from the finish the Marathon was a two-man race between Kohlemainen and Gitsham, the South African, who alternated with the winner in setting the pace. Gitsham, veteran at the event and who ran second in Stockholm in 1912, looked good until he weakened after running shoulder to shoulder with Hannes for twenty miles. Then he fell back slowly, and before long was outdistanced by several runners he had left behind at the start.

The American team did exceptionally well to have three men in the first twelve. All ran well and should be satisfied with their showing. Thus far none has showed any bad effects as a result of the gruelling grind.

Weather Ideal for Long Grind

The weather was ideal for the running of the great race, although it had been cold and threatening earlier in the day. There remained enough tang to the atmosphere to make it ideal, however, when the starter's gun sent a field of sixty-four away from the mark. The track was fairly fast.

The Finns, from the opening day of the Olympiad, have asserted their assurance of capturing the classic distance number. Today their expectations were fulfilled. To England, the result probably was most disappointing, since the British contingent had greatest confidence in A. R. Hills, the English cross country champion.

The Americans, while not scoring in the Marathon, continued to pile up their total score and tucked another record under their belts when the relay team walked away with the honors in the 400-metre contest. The Yankee team was composed of C. W. Paddock of Los Angeles; J. V. Scholz, University of Missouri; Laurence of New York, and M. W. Kirksey of the San Francisco Olympic Club. Their time was 42 1-5 seconds. France took second place, with Sweden third, and England, Denmark and Luxembourg finishing in fourth, fifth and sixth.

Old Mark Made by German Team

The old 400-metre relay mark of 42.8 seconds was hung up by a German team in 1912.

America also beat Sweden for first place in the 3,000 metre relay.

There was a big gallery today drawn in spite of the inclemency of the weather, because of the Marathon run. The route of the twenty-six-mile grind led through many small villages, over all sorts of roads, and the course, while solid and good for running in some places, also had spots where the runners found gravel and cobble under foot.

GOLFING TRYOUT AT KERNWOOD

Best of Bay State Players to Tune Up for Amateur Championship

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

Massachusetts amateur golfers and some low handicap players from outside the state will have an excellent workout Friday and Saturday in the 72 holes medal play tournament at the Kernwood Country Club, Salem, for the national amateur championship, which opens Labor Day at the Engineers' Club, Roslyn, Long Island.

There will be a large and powerful entry at Kernwood, fully capable of scoring well over the difficult course there and many of the number will benefit greatly by the experience, for Kernwood and the Engineers' Club course are both long and sound tests of golf. It is certain that Massachusetts will have a larger list of starters in this year's amateur championship than for many years.

Among the Massachusetts golfers who may start at Roslyn are Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford, Fred Wright, Jr., Parker Whittemore, Rodney Brown, F. C. Newton, Thomas Claflin, Parker Schofield, Larry Packer, Bing Whitcomb, A. D. Knight, R. C. Vanderbeck, H. G. Welborn, W. C. Chick and R. R. Gordon.

The Kernwood course is 6,280 yards long. The distances of the holes and the pars follow:

1	486	5	10	415	5
2	396	4	11	400	4
3	407	4	12	175	3
4	162	3	13	530	5
5	400	4	14	425	4
6	524	5	15	345	4
7	373	4	16	430	4
8	175	3	17	160	3
9	345	4	18	365	4

It is interesting to note that Jock Hutchinson of Glen View supplanted Jim Barnes, Western open champion and as Professional Golfers' champion. Jock also finished ahead of Farnes at Toledo, in the open championship, where he was tied for second with Harry Vardon, Leo Diegel and Jack Burke.

It now appears as if Jock was entitled to be the ranking golfer of America for the next year, taking honors away from Barnes and Hagen. Hagen did not play in the Western and Professional golfers' Association contests, but he finished far behind Hutchison in the open. Barnes was on hand at the Western and Pros to defend his titles, but failed in each event.

Jock's superior play was something of a surprise as he was in a bad slump early in the Spring. He was going so badly on the Florida coasts that he refused to play in the North and South championship at Pinehurst in April and returned to his home in Chicago. He certainly discovered what was wrong, for he has been brilliant for the past month.

Jock was fortunate in coming upon his best game at such an important period in the season. Perhaps Barnes and Hagen were a little overgolfed. However it may have been, they are no longer entitled to be introduced as America's two leading golfers, as they were at the Greenwich Country Club. Just before they started in the play-off for the Metropolitan title, that was before the Western and open championships.

Cyril Tolley, Lord Charles Hope and Roger Wethered, the English amateur golfers who are coming to play in the national amateur championship, will be entertained in this country by Howard J. Whitney, vice-president of the United States Golf Association. Tolley is the British amateur champion. He is a heavy hitter, but lacks control. In the British open he did not appear to be as sound a golfer as Francis Ouimet, Bobby Jones or Chick Evans.

Rhode Island men golfers did not get on as well here Saturday as the Rhode Island women players do when they visit Massachusetts. The R. I. State team lost, 14 to 1, at Brae Burn, Miss Elizabeth Gordon and Miss Glenna Collett generally take their Massachusetts neighbors into camp. Miss Collett and Miss Gordon are getting plenty of practice these days for the woman's national championship, which will be contested at Cleveland in October.

"On My Right, Georges Carpentier; On My Left Jack Dempsey"

THIS very amusing cartoon from the London Sketch is Alfred Lente's idea of how Carpentier and Dempsey may look when they finally appear in the ring, if Procrastination continues to be the matchmaker.

A lot of people besides Carpentier and Dempsey will eventually develop long gray beards by putting off important meetings and important tasks.

If you've got a fight on hand, don't delay it.

By the time you find all the terms suitable you will be too old to fight or to enjoy a fight.

FIFTY-MILE PACED RACE AT OVAL WEDNESDAY

An international motor-paced team race of fifty miles is slated for the mid-week feature event at Nat Butler's Revere track. France, Italy and America are the countries represented.

Vincent Madonna and Tony Colombatto will wear Italy's colors, Leon Didier and Daniel Lavadre are to sport the tri-color of France, while George Chapman and Percy Lawrence will represent the Stars and Stripes. No doubt the bulk of the riding will be done by Madonna, Chapman and Didier, with only short relief periods by their partners. This is the first time in more than ten years where three teams have competed in a race at the Revere track.

The amateurs and pro sprint riders will have their usual list of races to precede the stellar event.

SPEAKER IS HERE WITH INDIANS

Manager Arrives to Brace Up Indians; Jones and Harper to Pitch

Tris Speaker has arrived in Boston to take charge of his shattered Indians and try to infuse enough their old fighting spirit to keep them up around the fringe of the league. The Indian manager isn't his old self by any means, and chances are he will not get into the double-header today, but his mere presence should help his outfit along considerably.

The week-end rest gave the Invaders from the West a chance to get their bearings and there's no doubt that they will show better baseball than they had on display Saturday, when they dropped first their pennant chances terribly. The Clevelanders must brace up immediately to stay in the scramble, as the Chicago White Sox have evidently started their real drive, and are going desperately to the lead, now that they have nosed out front.

For today's double pastiming, the Sox had Sam Jones and Harry Harper lined up to do the pitching work, while Ray Caldwell and "Sarge" Jim Bagby were ready to represent the westerners. The latter pair will need all their stuff, if the Sox continue to play the brand of baseball they have been using lately. The team has hit a pace that would cut quite a swath in the race but for the long slump after a flying start.

There is a single game with the Indians billed for tomorrow and then the Speakers go to Philadelphia for four days, which offers them a splendid chance to gain back some lost ground, as the White Sox and Yanks will be up against real competition at the same time.

BENNETT A. A. TO MEET THE CRACK BUICK TEAM

The Bennett A. A. of Somerville will meet the undefeated Buick Motor team of Boston in a twilight contest at Lincoln Park, Somerville, tonight. The Bennetts have won five of their six contests this season and have had the satisfaction of defeating the only team that whipped them—the St. John's K. of C. of East Cambridge.

ST. JOHN'S COUNCIL IS WINNER BY 10 TO 4

St. John's K. of C. team of Cambridge defeated the American Rubber Company, 10 to 4, at Thorndike Field, East Cambridge.

Tippets, a former Eastern League pitcher, was on the mound for the American Rubber Company, and struck out ten. Carey and Carroll of St. John's got three hits out of four times at bat.

LEXINGTON COUNCIL WINS IN 10 INNINGS

The Lexington Council, K. of C., nine won a 10-inning game from the Watertown Council team, 3 to 2, on the Lexington Athletic Field.

Boston Soldiers Win

Coast defence of Boston defeated Coast defence of Portland, 6 to 3, in the second game of their baseball series at Fort Warren.

BIG BRACE DUE FROM BRAVES

Team, With the Exception of Rabbit Maranville, Seems Entirely Lacking in Spirit

Chicago, Aug. 23. — If the Braves are to get out of seventh place they will have to swing through with a batting stride against the Cubs. They have shocked by the Cardinals in four straight defeats and now are but a few laps in front of the tail-end Phillies. Up to facing the Cards this trip the Braves had won nine out of thirteen from the Branch Rickey's. In the series just over, though, the Cardinals found their batting eyes while their pitchers were entirely too strong for the Braves' attack.

The best game of the series for Stallings was pitched by John Scott Sunday. He went ten innings with Hill Doak and was beaten, 3 to 2. Three successive hits in the tenth after fanning Hornsby sent Scott to defeat. Mellory and Lavan singled and Heathcote bit over Cruise's head for a double, scoring the winning run.

But Scott did not get much support from his batters. Mann scored Maranville in the fourth with a single and Mann scored the big pitcher with a single in the sixth. The put the Braves in front 2 to 1. But in the home eighth, a pass to Fournier and a single by Stock and Hornsby tied it at two a piece.

The biggest handicap trailing the Braves appears to be their lack of spirit, barring Rabbit Maranville. The midget shortstop is just as busy as ever, the same little hustler who was such an important cog in the championship machine of 1914. But outside of the rabbit no one appears to become excited, winning or losing. Then again the Braves could use a winning southpaw—one like George Tyler was during those good old days.

The Cardinals are weak against southpaw pitching, but with Stallings without a southpaw, Rickey did not lose any of his batting strength.

The Cardinals used two left-handers in the series and each won. Rickey stopped the Braves Saturday with Mike Kircher after Haines had been chased with four runs in two innings and after Doak beat Scott Sunday Fred Schupp made the Braves sneak through the inning.

MITCHELL'S AURORA IS WINNER AT HULL

The four-mile handicap yacht race, held by the Hull Bay Yacht Club, was won by the Aurora, John L. Mitchell's new 30-footboat, in 51 minutes 16 seconds. The time was fair considering the moderate east wind that was blowing.

The Almira, owned by Dr. H. A. Jones, was second in 52 minutes, and the Grayling, owned by C. V. Nickerson, copped third prize in 54 minutes 54 seconds.

AUK IS WINNER IN ANNISQUAM SPECIAL

Gloucester, Aug. 22.—Fred Ayer's Auk was victorious in the special race for bird boats sailed over the Annisquam Yacht Club course, defeating H. G. Guild's Coot by more than two minutes. The Auk also led the bird boats in the regular club race.

DOYLE ON TRAIL OF KLOBY

Boston Welter Logical Opponent for Y. D. Battler in Opinion of N. E. Fans

By JACK CONWAY.

The promoters are seeking an opponent for Young Kloby, who will be back in the ring battling in his usual lusty style next month. Having earned between $40,000 and $50,000 as a result of the power of his fists since returning from France, the Y. D. champion doesn't believe in tiring himself by fighting during the Summer. You can't blame even a nobis son of swat for getting a little upon as the girls say, when he is able to draw on a reserve of $50,000.

There are a lot of broad cheated, strong headed warriors who are willing to meet Kloby. This is only natural as the boys who stop the wallops realize that anybody who gets flattened by Kloby gets well paid for his services inasmuch as the entire Merrimac Valley sporting contingent is on hand whenever Lawrence Tommy starts swinging blows.

Stop the average fight fan on the street and ask him whom he considers the logical opponent for Kloby and he will name Paul Doyle. This in only natural as Doyle is one of the best welterweights in the game. He has also a victory to his credit over Kloby. He didn't get the decision, but he was out in front just as sure as the League of Nations advocates will be buried under an avalanche of votes this Fall.

Jerry Moore gave the decision to Kloby. This resulted in Moore being barred by New England clubs for many months. Moore is now back refereeing in the big show. He was the third man in the ring at the Siegal-Flynn bout and handled things in a creditable way. His verdict in favor of Siegal was the proper one.

Why not another Kloby-Doyle bout with Moore as referee? There would not be any doubt of the fair man getting the decision. Think it over, Messrs. Promoters.

Wilson-O'Dowd Bout Now in Order

Mike O'Dowd convinced his many admirers in New England that he is still quite a fighting man by the way he disposed of Tommy Robson at Lawrence Tuesday, one of the best punchers in the middleweight class, was unable to prevent the St. Paul man from smashing his way to a victory.

O'Dowd's victory has started a new demand for an O'Dowd-Wilson bout. When Champion O'Dowd gave all comers a chance to battle for his title, Wilson declared he would follow Mike's example. He now has an opportunity to make good his promise.

As for Robson, he made a fine showing against O'Dowd. There are mighty few middleweights in this country who possess enough class to beat Mike O'Dowd.

Carlson to Box Either Britt or Downes

Harry Carlson, Brockton lightweight, came through with flying colors in his twelve-round engagement with Jimmy Fruzetti at Hilly Dodd Field, Lawrence, in the special over Field. Carlson will now probably be matched to clash with either Frankie (Young) Britt or South Boston Johnny Downes in a show to be staged in Brockton on the afternoon of Labor Day.

United Drug Beaten

Bristol, Ct., Aug. 23.—The New Departure Club defeated the United Drug Company of Boston, 3 to 2, in twelve innings.

CHAPTER XXII.—Continued.

"HE is a man of few friends, admired but not well liked, he is hopelessly poor, fiercely proud, sensitive——"

"What?"

"Did you think he wasn't?" she asked. "He is painfully sensitive; pitiably so. I think women divine it, and it attracts them."

"He hasn't the reputation of being very thin-skinned," remarked Cleland drily.

"The average man who is sensitive would die to conceal it. You ought to know that, Jim; it's your business to dissect people, isn't it?"

She thrust a second pin through the crown of her hat and adjusted it deftly.

"Anyway," she said, "you are a nice, polite boy to go to see him, and you have made me very happy. Goodby! I must run——"

"Have you lunched?"

"No; but I'm going to."

"With whom?" he asked inquisitively.

"A man."

Still Elusive

"You've usually just going out to lunch or dine with some man," he said sullenly.

"I like men," she said, smiling at him.

"What you probably mean is that you like admiration."

"I do. It's agreeable; it's sanitary; it's soothing. It invigorates one's self-confidence and self-respect. And it doesn't disarrange one's hair and rumple one's gown. Therefore I prefer the undemonstrative admiration of a man to the indiscreet demonstrations of a boy."

"Do you mean me?" he asked, furious.

But she ignored the question.

"Boys are funny," she said, swinging her velvet reticule in circles. "Any girl can upset their equilibrium. All a girl has to do is to look at a boy sideways—the way Lady Hutton-Eyes looked at you yesterday afternoon——"

"What!"

"At the Rochambeaus. And you got up and went over and renewed your friendship with her. Helen and I saw you."

"I was merely civil," he said.

"So was she. She fished out a card and wrote on it. I don't know what she wrote."

"She wrote her telephone call. There isn't the slightest chance of my using it."

Stephanie laughed.

"He certainly is the nicest, politest boy in all Manhattan, and sister and I are proud of him. Good-bye, James——"

She offered her lips to him audaciously, bending forward on tiptoe, both hands clasped behind her. But her gray eyes were bright with malice.

"Nice, polite boy," she repeated. "Kiss little sister."

"No," he said gloomily. "I'm fed up on sisterly kisses——"

"You insulting wretch! Do you mean you won't? Then you shall——"

She started toward him, wrath in her eyes, but he caught her wrist and held her.

Too Well Satisfied

"You're altogether too well satisfied with yourself," he said. "You've no emotions inside your lovely head except discreet ones. Otherwise, you've got the devil inside you, and it's getting on my nerves."

"Jim! You beast!"

"Yes, I am. What of it? Beasts have emotions. Yours have either been cultivated out of you or you were born without any. I'm glad I am part beast. I'm glad you know it. The rest of me is human; and the combination isn't a very serious menace to civilization. But the sort of expurgated girl you are is!"

"Don't you think I am capable of any deep emotions?" she asked. The smile had died on her lips.

"Maybe. I don't know."

"Who should, if you don't?"

He shrugged.

"Your husband, perhaps."

"Jim! I told you not to call him that!"

"Well, a spade is a spade——"

"Do you mean to be offensive?"

"How can that offend you?"

She released her wrists and shot a curious, inexplicable look at him.

"I don't understand you," she said. "You can be so generous and high-minded and you can be so unkind and insolent to me——"

"Insolent?"

"Yes. You meant it insolently when you spoke of Oswald as my husband. You've done it before, too. Why do you? Do you really want to hurt me? Because you know he isn't my husband except by title. He may never be."

More Maddening

"All right," he said. "I'm sorry I was offensive. I'm just tired of this mystery, I suppose. It's a hopeless sort of affair for me. I can't make you love me; you're married, besides. It's too much for me—I can't cope with it, Steve. . . . So I won't ever bother you again with importunities. I'll go my own way."

"Very well," she said in an even voice.

She nodded to him and went out, saying as she passed:

"There'll be tea at 5, if you care for any." And left him planted.

Which presently enraged him, and he began to pace the studio, pondering on the cruelty, insensibility and injustice of that devilish sex which had created man as a convenience.

"The thing to do," he said savagely to himself, "is to exterminate the last trace of love for her, tear it out, uproot it, trample on it without remorse——"

The studio bell rang. He walked to the door and opened it. A bewilderingly pretty girl stood there.

"Miss Davis?" she inquired sweetly. "I have an appointment."

"Come in," said Cleland, the flush of wrath still on his countenance.

The girl entered; he offered her a chair.

"Miss Davis happens to be out at the moment," he said, "but I don't believe she'll be very long."

"Do you mind my waiting?" asked the pretty girl.

"No, I don't," he said, welcoming diversion. "Do you mind my being here? Or are you going to put me out?"

It Doesn't Pay

She looked surprised; then she laughed very delightfully.

"Of course not. Miss Davis and I have known each other for a long while, and I owe her a great deal and I am devoted to her. Do you think I'd be likely to banish a friend of hers? Besides, I'm only one of her models."

"A model?" he repeated. "How delightful! I also am a model—of good behavior."

They both laughed.

"Does it pay?" she inquired mischievously.

"No, it doesn't. I wish I had another job."

"Why not take the one I've just left "

"What was it?"

"I was dancing at the Folies."

"All right. Will you try me out?"

"With pleasure."

"I'll turn on that music-box."

The girl laughed her enchanting little laugh, appraising him at a glance, then turned her pretty head and critically surveyed the studio.

"I believe," she said, "I'm to pose for Miss Davis seated on a winged horse. Isn't that exciting?"

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

Romantic Serial by a Noted Author

FOR a time after Brooks departed for the luncheon to which Val had neglected to invite me, I wandered about restlessly trying to find something with which to occupy myself. But the day stretched ahead blank and empty. I was delighted when the 'phone rang. Answering it gave me something to do, even if I got there only to be told "No one on the line now." That didn't happen, however. Instead Pat's voice came over the wire.

"Anne, will you drop everything you're doing and meet me for lunch? He asked so anxiously that ordinarily I'd have acquiesced at once, but now my raw feelings made me parley with him.

"Can't you get anyone else? Is that why you ask me to lunch at the eleventh hour?"

"Come now, Alanna, what's ruffled the fine plumage of your conceit this most Irish. "It's not the eleventh hour, but the lunch hour—just one. I've been waiting for young Neal to get out of the office so I could call you. Knowing how the lad adores you, I was sure he'd insist on being invited too, and I wanted to see you alone. Will you be blaming me for that?"

Of course I went.

Looking Haggard

I found Pat striding up and down the restaurant corridor, looking startlingly haggard, almost ill. His eyes seemed deeper-set than ever and the lines about his mouth were rugged. I made no comment, suffering him to greet me in commonplace fashion and lead me to the table he had selected.

That things were oddly amiss with Pat I gathered from the fact that instead of ordering with the easy grace so characteristic of him, he asked me uneasily what I wanted and didn't seem able to make up his mind about his food. At last we got the needed preliminaries out of the way, and as we settled back to wait for our order, Pat burst out doggedly:

"Anne, something's got to be done about that Harrison place. I can't have it like this much longer. The transfer's all made—only waiting for her signature. Some one's got to bring her to her senses."

"Yes," I inquired politely. "And who?"

Pat's eyes twinkled. I liked him for the understanding grin in the midst of his own personal solemnity.

"Meaning you don't fancy the job?" he asked.

"Meaning I'm not up to it." I began, and then my blood froze in my veins and my voice stuck in my throat, for marching into the restaurant with the overpresent Sheldon in her wake came no less than Virginia.

Perhaps if she'd seen us as she came in she wouldn't have carried the thing through so scornfully. But the maitre d'hotel himself was escorting her to a place and he seated her diagonally across from us, so that directly she was seated Virginia must see us. One quick, scornful glance and then, fussing audibly about the draft, Virginia changed places with Sheldon so that she sat with her back to us. That she should turn away like this and yet remain in the restaurant must have seemed a deadly insult to Pat. He changed colors, but made no comment.

As if by mutual consent, we raced through our lunch and got out of the place. And then, also as if we had planned it, we stepped into a taxi and rolled off toward the park. After a moment or two Pat spoke in a grim tone to match the lines about his mouth:

May Go Fishing

"I'm going to clear out of here for a while, Anne. Young Neal is well able to run the whole works. And if he strikes any snags, Carlotta will steer him out of shoal water. I need—a vacation."

"Where are you going?" I asked, as if that were the main point at issue.

"One of my clubs has a lodge up North. If I get company, I may go for a fishing trip," he replied, evading a direct answer and driving on to what was in his mind. "I've started work on the Old Place, Anne. I wonder if you'll run out now and again and see that everything's ship-shape. I'll withdraw that deal I made out to Virginia. It's never been recorded—couldn't be without her signature. When I come back I'll talk it over with Jimmie. I know he once wanted the place, and if he still cares to buy, I'll let him have it for what I paid."

"Of course we want it, but we won't talk about buying it now. And remember this, you nice, generous boy: if we take it off your hands, we'll include the improvements in the price," I replied, feeling as if I ought to pull poor Pat's head down on my shoulder and tell him to cry it out.

"Pat Dalton!" I cried with sudden conviction. "Pat Dalton—where are you going? Not North to fish, I know that. You're too final about things. Where are you going?"

Then, almost as I had known he would, Pat turned to me with the hopeless expression I had seen Virginia wear a few weeks before and spoke almost the very words she had used. Only now it was hopeless and I had no answer, no argument, or this is what Pat said:

"There's one thing I can give her. There's one gift she can't refuse, and that's her freedom. I'm going to Reno, Anne."

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Fletcher

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

FLETCHER

VARIATIONS — Arnsmith, Setter, Tipper, Flower.

RACIAL ORIGIN—English.

SOURCES—Trades.

WHO says there is no romance in names? How many business men, manufacturers, merchants, manual workers and professional men of this modern age go busily about their daily occupations without a thought, without even the knowledge that their family names are the last relics of what was once one of the mightiest industries of medieval England, and which today is obsolete.

The ancestors of the Fletchers, Aramiths, Setters, Tippers and Flowers were the backbone of the English nation in the middle ages, for they furnished her fighting forces with munitions, that deadliest weapon with which the English maintained their independence upon many a battlefield before the final development of the musket and the rifle.

The family name Arsmith is simply a contraction of "arrow-smith." The arrowsmith was he who made his living by fashioning arrow heads.

The Setters were those who set the heads upon the arrow shafts.

Tippers were craftsmen who sharpened the points after they had been set.

The Fletchers (it was also spelled "flecther" in those days) were those who affixed the feathers or "fledges" (from the same word root which gives us both "feather" and "fledgeling") to the shafts. This was probably the process which required the greatest finesse, for the true flight of the arrow in those long shots for which the archers of old England were famous depended as much on the feather as anything. The term "fletcher" also was used in the more general sense as embracing the entire craft of arrow makers. "Flo" was a familiar name for the arrow in those days, whence comes the name "Flower."

The first Fletcher in America, at least on record, was Robert Fletcher, who settled at Concord about 1630. He came either from Shropshire or from Yorkshire, England. This Robert knew the rigors of the early pioneer life, subduing the wilderness at Concord, fighting with the stubborn conditions to wrest a living from what he termed, "the poverte and meanness of the soil, and the badness and wetness of the meadows." Consequent upon these conditions, he petitioned for a new grant of lands, and got them, in 1645. This Robert was town constable, for a period.

There are other branches of the family besides the Concord, the Chelmsford, the Lancaster, and the Westford branches. In England, where the Fletchers came from, of the families among the forty, 19 were Fletchers, at the time of their emigration.

Tomorrow—Warren.

Louise Huff's Beauty Talk

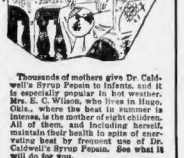
That dainty and charming actress, Louise Huff, is famous for her beautiful complexion and as an author of many articles on the subject of beauty she has been persuaded to tell the readers of this paper how they may quickly acquire a soft, smooth, rosy-white complexion like hers. She says: "To get the best results the skin should be thoroughly cleansed, then apply Derwilin which can be obtained at the toilet counter of any up-to-date drug or department store." This instantly beautifies the complexion and its continued use makes the results permanent. Over five hundred thousand girls and women are using Derwilin in preference to face powder and other beautifiers and they are just as enthusiastic over it as Miss Huff. Be sure to read her latest article on the complexion soon to appear in this paper. In the meantime get Derwilin which she recommends and try it to-day. you will be delighted with it and soon have a complexion for which everyone will compliment you.—Advertisement.

Keeping Healthy in Broiling Sun

When head feels heavy or stomach is acidy, quick relief with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

IN spite of the lighter foods we eat during summer months, it is the season of greatest dyspepsia and constipation. Many find it difficult to stand the heat. They exercise little and are always tired and half-sick.

It is good policy to take plenty of ripe fruit and vegetables, lots of cool, clear water and walks when the sun has set. But with all these precautions it is often impossible to regulate the daily elimination, with the result that thousands suffer from constipation, indigestion and similar ills.



Thousands of mothers give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to infants, and it is especially popular in hot weather. Mrs. E. C. Wilson, who lives in Hugo, Okla., where the heat in summer is intense, is the mother of eight children. All of them, and including herself, maintain their health in spite of scorching heat by frequent use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See what it will do for you.

There is nothing better for clogged-up bowels, for a stomach that refuses to work, than that well-known combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is America's standard relief for constipation. It has the great merit of being sure to act, yet acting mildly and without griping.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

NEW CONDUCTOR FOR "AIDA"

Mollenhauer Replaces Jacchia, to Whom Musicians' Union Objected

Emil Mollenhauer, conductor of the Handel and Haydn Society and the Apollo Club, has been chosen to conduct the Pilgrim performance of Verdi's "Aida" at Braves Field on Wednesday evening, September 1.

Mr. Mollenhauer succeeds Agide Jacchia, who resigns the post to avoid embarrassing the management as a result of the position taken regarding him by the Musicians' Union.

NOT A MEMBER OF UNION.

The union regulations now provide that only a member of the American Federation of Musicians can conduct a union orchestra. Mr. Jacchia is not a member. He maintains that he resigned from the union to conduct the Boston Pops several seasons ago, and the union claims that he was expelled for that reason.

Mr. Jacchia accepted the post of conductor of the Open Air "Aida" performance in good faith, because he presumed that the union would not prevent him from conducting. The union officials have notified the management of the production that no members of the organization would play in case Mr. Jacchia conducted, unless he reinstated himself in the union.

ACCEPT RESIGNATION.

Jacchia communicated with the national officials of the union and offered to apply for reinstatement if he were permitted to carry out his existing contracts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The Union replied that the Boston Symphony was on the "unfair" list and his reinstatement could not take place while he had contracts with it unfulfilled.

Mr. Jacchia has, therefore resolved the situation by resigning his post as conductor of "Aida." The management has accepted it reluctantly but considers itself fortunate to secure Mr. Mollenhauer, who has already been working with the "Aida" chorus for the past two months, and who has conducted the opera many times.

WOMAN SUICIDE IS IDENTIFIED

Husband Sobs as He Views Body of Death Pact Companion of Flyer

New York, Aug. 23.—Percy Deveral of Wheeling, W. Va., on his arrival in New York, identified the body of the woman found dead in a fashionable Brooklyn apartment hotel on Friday night as that of his wife. With the woman's body, that of H. E. Ferry, former U. S. aviator and partner in a death pact, was also discovered.

Deveral said he last saw his wife three weeks ago in Wheeling. She left there, he said, to come to New York and supervise packing of their household furniture for shipment to the South. He denied that he and his wife had been estranged, and said they both had been looking forward to occupying a home he had bought in the fashionable residential part of Wheeling.

"Only Thursday," he said, "she wired me she was ready to return, and on Friday I sent her the money by wire. In my mind this is nothing more than an unfortunate accident.

How to Beautify a Summer Soiled Face

It's really a simple matter to renovate a face soiled by sun, winds or dirt. Ordinary bottled wax, used like cold cream, will transform the worst old complexion into one of spicy whiteness and velvety softness. It literally peels off the outer veil of surface skin, not at once, gradually, there's no discomfort. The wonderful whitening wax, in tiny particles, leaving no evidence of the treatment. The younger, healthier underskin forming the new complexion, is one of rapturously loveliness, the ounce of mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store, is enough to remove any tanned, reddened, pimpled, freckled or blotchy skin. Apply before retiring, washing it off mornings.

Many skins wrinkle easily with every wind that blows, with heat, worry, etc. An excellent wrinkle remover, because it tightens the skin and smoothens relaxed muscles, is a wash lotion made as follows: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one half pint. This gives immediate results.—Advertisement.

NARROW RANGE FOR BOSTON

Local Trading of Small Volume and Irregular Trend; Curb Is Listless

The price movement on the Boston Exchange was indecisive when that institution opened and the market remained irregular during the morning. The range was narrow, an unusual number of stocks selling unchanged from Saturday's closing price. Business was of small volume and but few issues "came out." The tone was heavy. Among issues to recede a point or more during the forenoon were Lawyers, Utah Metal, Greene and Mexican Investment. All early gains were fractional.

Among stocks to show less than a point loss were Calumet & Arizona, New Haven, United Shoe, Greenfield Tap & Die, Reece Buttonhole, Swift, Eureka and Porcupine Premier.

Selling in the early hour in Boston & Montana was up 5 cents at 75 cents and Eureka was off 3 cents at 31 cents. Trading reversed this loss and Silver reef had lost its gain.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Aug. 23.—The cotton market had a nervous opening, prices fluctuating within a range in official values from 3 points which made it impossible at first to know whether prices were higher or lower. October and November contracts here started at an advance of 3 points, but the general selling later caused a drop of from 7 to 60 points in later values, or from 10 to 64 points on the old. Changes after the first hour were within a range of 5 points. Recovery subsequently about 15 to 20 points on, opening prices were: August, 31.00; October, 29.50; November, 27.25; December, 26.60; January, 25.60.

Cotton Mills Closed

Winchendon, Mass., Aug. 23.—Cotton mills of Nelson B. White & Son at Winchendon Springs and Glenn Allen closed indefinitely today, affecting 1,000 employes. Cancellation of orders is given as the reason. The concern makes blue denims only.

ODD-LOT BUYERS ARE ACTIVE

Have Absorbed All Speculative Short Selling; Price Collapse Foreseen

By BROADAN WALL
Registered U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Aug. 23.—Wall Street expects one last, great rush by the speculative public that sees hard times coming and wants to recoup some of the money wasted in extravagant living and lost in wild speculation. The odd-lot buyers have already arrived. They are the advance guard in every public movement.

Wall Street is ready.

The managers of corporations are thinking a great deal more just now of how to get back to a sound basis of business than they are of the record profits. They realize that the people are watching them. Even the government of United States is checking its wild orgy of spending.

Very few persons have used anything of their great war profits and earnings and they are now looking excitedly to the stock market for a possible source of fresh supplies of easy money. The actual speculation has not begun but the atmosphere is charged with it.

HARD TIMES COMING.

The odd-lot buying the last week has been of phenomenal size. It has absorbed all the speculative short selling. That means that the people are getting ready to come in. Wall Street again. Just as soon as the banks get the credit situation cleared up a bit more the demand for stocks and cheap money will be the signal for a speculative jamboree such as the country has seldom witnessed.

The world is entering a period of hard times. Everybody realizes the fact and everybody wants one more whirl at the stock market—just one.

The market may easily go lower for it usually hits positively new lows with a smash before turning upward for a long swing such as is now in temptation. But once the upward swing is pronounced the gains are fast and the traders who buy just before the final break are usually most fortunate.

LAST SPECULATIVE CHANCE.

The bankers who have taken advantage of the credit conditions to force the liquidation of gilt-edged investments that they have themselves in many cases bought with the very money they forced the unfortunate sellers to repay to the bank, have no notion of taking small profits—for they, too, believe this is going to be the last big speculative opportunity before the hard times come.

France will have to pay pawnbroker rates for her new loan in the United States, ocean rates will drop, prices of commodities will collapse, brokerage concerns that have bucketed their customers' stocks will fail. Some banks will be placed in the hands of receivers along with their profit-seeking customers who dragged them down—both victims of the same greed —and the railroads will borrow untold millions of money.

HARDING DEFIES COX ON FUND

Senator Demands That Democratic Nominee Prove Big G.O.P. Campaign Charges

Marion, O., Aug. 23.—A direct challenge to Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic candidate, to prove his repeated assertions that the Republican party had raised a $15,000,000 campaign fund has just been issued by Senator Warren G. Harding.

The candidate characterized the Cox charges that the Republicans had raised a huge campaign fund by means of "dummy" contributions as "perfectly ridiculous."

"We court the closest scrutiny of our campaign contributions," said Senator Harding.

He estimated his pre-convention expenditures this spring at $110,000 and predicted that the entire Republican campaign this summer would not cost more than $3,000,000. The Republican National Committee was without funds at the beginning of the present campaign, Senator Harding stated, and had been compelled to borrow $250,000.

No special effort is to be made either by the candidate or the party, Senator Harding told the correspondents, to capture the 17,000,000 women voters that are now retained for the elections as a result of the ratification of the suffrage amendment.

COPPER MARKET IS DULL AND UNCHANGED

The copper market began the week dull and without essential change. All last week producers held firmly to the 19 cents a pound quotation, while small interests are said to have been able to market a little metal at from 18¾ to 18¾ cents. While buying was on a small scale, large interests believe that copper will soon be in demand. The call for metal now exceeds the supply and there is enough buying of spelter to keep that market firm.

As regards copper, while producers expect to do most of their business in the immediate future with domestic consumers, it is believed that foreigners will have to take a large quantity before long. During June, this year, refined copper exports totalled 51,438,223 pounds, valued at $10,186,-445. Exports for the fiscal year totalled 219,714,181 pounds, valued at $127,257,375.

AMERICANS CANCEL ORDERS FOR TEXTILES

According to R. C. Beers, United States vice consul at Liverpool, American buyers have recently cancelled large orders for textiles they had placed in England. He said when he arrived in New York:

"I have knowledge that orders approximating £4,000,000 with three firms were cancelled by American purchasers. Usually prices are steadily falling in England. A good suit of clothes cannot be obtained for less than $100 and the shortage in production is bad. Labor is looking for and others are expecting a labor government. The housing shortage is felt all over England. There is much sentiment against present taxes and a demonstration against the 10 per cent. advance in railroad rates. It now costs seven shillings to travel twenty-four miles first class."

Development of Dye Industry

Since the great war in Europe this country has made great advancement in dye production and is not only supplying the home market but is finding a constantly expanding market abroad. The Department of Commerce reports dyestuffs exports in June this year valued at $3,851,180, against $1,323,346 in June, 1913. Exports in the fiscal year ended June showed a gain over exports during the preceding two years. The value was $25,792,565, against $17,845,365 in the preceding fiscal year and $16,321,-583 during 1915.

Boston's Wool Trade

Shipments of wool from Boston from January 1 to August 19, inclusive, totaled 166,870,150 pounds, according to the Commercial Bulletin, as against 85,738,457 pounds for the corresponding period last year. The receipts from January 1 to August 19, inclusive, were 217,783,877 pounds, against 286,331,250 pounds.

FIRE DESTROYS PART OF MONTREAL BRIDGE

Montreal, Aug. 23.—As a result of a fire which destroyed about a third of the west roadway of the Victoria Jubilee bridge, no automobiles or wagons for a week will be able to use the structure, which connects Montreal with the south shore of the St. Lawrence River. The Grand Trunk railroad and electric cars also use the bridge but they were able to resume traffic after the fire as the part where the tracks are located was not seriously damaged.

TOURIST HAMPERED BY SHIP SHORTAGE

New York, Aug. 23.—A shortage of trans-Atlantic liners is being felt among tourists seeking passage to foreign shores and accommodations on all outgoing steamers are at a premium.

Passengers are forced to secure bookings three months ahead and even then many people of refinement and wealth are forced to accept third class passage in order to sail. Despite doubling of pre-war tariffs and rigid restrictions as to passports ocean travel was never so heavy as at present.

Mr. Cox, Explain Your Stand on Article X.

Recently the Hearst newspapers asked Governor Cox, the Democratic candidate for President, how he stood on Article X. of the League of Nations.

Article X. is the most vicious provision of the many evil provisions of this unfortunate, abortive pretence of promoting peace, called the League of Nations. Article X. is the article which guarantees the territorial integrity of all the nations which enter the League of Nations and binds every other nation in the League to defend the territorial integrity of each nation. So America, if she were a member of the League, would be obliged to defend the territorial integrity of the British Empire from all danger of destruction by outside intervention.

Thus to Ireland, Egypt, Mesopotamia, India and Persia, England's oppressed nationalities, would be denied the means of freedom by which every little nation has obtained its freedom from its big oppressor in the last century and a half.

Governor Cox attempts to make Article X. seem less detestable to American principles and to American traditions by arguing that the League of Nations is only a treaty and cannot supersede the American Constitution, which gives the power of declaring war to Congress, and thus secures to the future the right of the future to decide under future circumstances whether to declare war or not to declare war.

This is the merest quibble.

President Wilson has stated over and over again, and Mr. Cox concedes, that Article X. binds us morally to do exactly what it says we shall do, namely, to come to the aid of any nation which is threatened with the loss of its territory.

Like a nation's indebtedness, a nation's treaty obligations must be fulfilled while they exist. Mr. Cox knows this, and he knows that if we make this agreement and the time comes for us to fulfil it, and he is the Chief Executive, he will fulfil it.

He must show liberty lovers and peace lovers in this country why the League of Nations, which excludes from whatever benefits it pretends to confer upon three-quarters of the human race, and almost three-fifths of the white race, is not an offensive and defensive alliance of certain nations to secure the spoils which they have taken in the last one hundred years, and which now a more enlightened world is beginning to question.

Saloon's Worst Foe Is Its Best Customer of Old

The corner saloon was a municipal cancer. It grew like a canker sore on the edges of our busiest thoroughfares, spread out its tentacles into neighborhood communities and ate into the very fabric of civilization—the home.

Now it is gone. And all King Barleycorn's horses and all King Barleycorn's men cannot put it together again. That's a nursery rhyme, but let us have more of the same nursery rhymes and less maudlin jingles.

There are some people who think they want the saloon back.

Ask those people if they had ever been in a saloon. Not as a tourist. But as a customer. Not as a casual customer, but as a "regular." If they have not, then go and find a "regular."

Ask the "regular" if he wants the saloons back. Search him out in his home, at his hearthstone, with his now happy wife and healthy children. Ask that "regular" if he wants the saloon back. And don't be surprised if you have to pick yourself off his sidewalk exactly as the "regular" saloon customer has picked himself off the saloon sidewalk on many occasions.

The "regular" is the one man above all others that doesn't want the corner cancer back again.

THE BITTEREST ENEMY OF THE SALOON TODAY WAS ITS BEST CUSTOMER OF YESTERDAY.

Do you wish for the return of the saloon with its bright lights, gay jokes and deadly poison?

For every light there have been two tragedies; for every joke two tears, and for every laugh there have been many sobs.

Poorest Paid Public Workers

Down at the Custom House are a group of men, hired by Uncle Sam, who lay claim to being the "poorest paid workers in the United States." If not that, they are close to it.

They are rated as "laborers." They do the work of longshoremen, but get about one-third the pay—$70 a month, with a bonus of $20.

Though not in the civil service, they had to take an examination before they got their jobs. Then Congress passed a law limiting their pay to $840 a year. The bonus is an emergency measure, to keep them from quitting. But it isn't having that effect. One by one these underpaid workers are going where they can get a living wage. They would prefer to work for the Government, but they have to live.

Wouldn't you think that in a time of changing prices the Government would give its chief agent on the spot, the revenue collector or the postmaster, authority to fit wage scales to market conditions, the same as a private corporation gives a branch manager?

If all branches of the Government service were thus organized, and the work of these chief agents carefully checked up, Congress would get fewer complaints, the work would be better done, and the chances are that the total cost would not be increased.

For then the responsible agent of the Government on the spot could see that his men earned their pay. If he padded his pay rolls or carried incompetents, exposure would disgrace him.

Our country's public business is too big to be run in fixed grooves, with so little local discretion.

It will some time and somehow have to be decentralized.

More Truth Than Poetry

Disturbing Symptoms

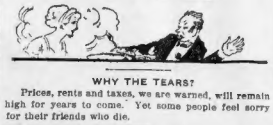
By S. E. KISER

OH, lovely girl, I never new
How bright this world could be
Till I had gladly looked at you,
And you looked back at me.
I wonder if this can be love
That I have learned to feel,
Or but the consequences of
A too expensive meal?

OH, maiden, when you disappear
For your return I pine;
I feel a feeling that is queer
Within this breast of mine.
Ah, has love come at last, indeed,
To hold me in its spell,
Or am I merely "off my feed"
Through having dined too well?

OH, lovely maiden, when you choose
To beckon me to come,
In glad bewilderment I lose
My equilibrium;
I seem to be as hopeless as
A sailor in a fog;
Can this be love's young dream, or has
My liver slipped a cog?

HOW can I know that this is love
Beyond the slightest question?
So oft we make the old mistake
Concerning indigestion.
With deep concern I seem to burn,
My heart with wildness beating;
Tomorrow, doubtless, I shall learn
It's something I've been eating.



WHY THE TEARS?

Prices, rents and taxes, we are warned, will remain high for years to come. Yet some people feel sorry for their friends who die.

THE MISSUS SEEMS TO BE CONFIDENT ENOUGH

Mr. Harding once expressed the fear that he was not great enough to be President. Evidently Mr. Penrose has cleared away his doubts in that respect.

WHAT'S THE WORD FROM BURLESON?

"I want to get back into private life," says Vice-President Marshall. There's nothing like being graceful about such things.

Editor Boston American:

Am a constant reader of your paper. I always read and admire your editorials. The one "Behold the British Fleet" is especially fine. If they had sent out their fleet to meet the Lusitania, as they promised, what sorrow and lives would have been saved. I had a sister on that ill-fated boat, so know whereof I speak.

Restaurant Profits

Editor Boston American:

I am much interested in your editorials on Boston restaurant profiteering and letters published in your columns. The blueberry pie at 20c per cut and sliced tomato at 35c per order is bad enough, but I would like to call attention to the profits on the more necessary articles of food, milk and eggs. Many restaurants charge 10c per glass for milk, about 8 glasses per quart, 80c to one who likes milk. The retail price of milk at 18c per quart gives the restaurant keeper a profit of over 150 per cent.

In a small Scollay square restaurant the other day I ordered a dish called an egg salad, consisting of one egg sliced on one lettuce leaf and ¼ teaspoonful of salad dressing. The price was 35 cents. At this rate eggs would cost $4.20 a dozen.

Music at Nantasket

Editor Boston American:

As there is much discussion in regard to the concerts at Nantasket, I, as one of the "younger" band leaders of Boston, wish to say a few words to the residents of Nantasket and to those that frequent the beach. The commission wanted bids from the "good" bands of Boston. The first band at the beach this year was not a "good" band; it consisted of musicians that were unused to the conductor and consequently proved a failure.

The 10th Regiment Band, under Lieutenant John Harry Haskins, the only enlisted band in the Massachusetts State Guard, was "good" enough to play every evening on the Common during the police strike, and I think it is "good" enough to hold the Nantasket audiences, if chosen. I wish to add, Mr. Editor, that the Y. D. Band, under Lieutenant Jack O'Neil, should be given credit for its fine work at Nantasket.

Asst. Leader, 10th Regt. Band.

TWO WEEKS ago.
HE SHOWED me a plant.
AND A colored powder.
AND SAID the powder.
IF PUT on the plant.
WOULD MAKE it grow.
AS MUCH in a day.
AS IT would grow.
WITHOUT THE powder.
IN THIRTY days.
AND SURE enough.
ON THE very next day.
THE PLANT had grown.
AN INCH or more.
AND THIS went on.
FOR ALL of a week.
AND EVERY morning.
I DROPPED in.
AND WAS amazed.
AND AT the end.
OF THE seventh day.
HE SHOWED to me.
ANOTHER POWDER.
OF DIFFERENT color.
AND SAID to me.
IF HE sprinkled it.
ON THE growing plant.
IT WOULD go back.
TO THE size it was.

WHEN I saw it first.
AND I was excited.
AND TALKED of millions
THAT HE could make.
AND FOR seven days.
ON EVERY morning.
I WENT in.
AND SURE enough.
I COULD see each day.
THAT THE plant had shrunk.
AND AT the end.
OF THE fourteenth day.
IT WAS back again.
WHERE it had been.
WHEN FIRST it came.
AND I begged of him.
THAT HE let me know.
WHAT HIS secret was.
AND HE opened the door.
OF A little closet.
IN HIS little shop.
AND I saw six plants.
STANDING ALL in a row.
LIKE A family of kids.
FROM TWO to twelve.
AND HE'D borrowed them all.
FROM THE flower store.
NEXT DOOR to his shop.

I THANK you.

In Absence

By MARGARET WIDDEMER

I am content with you away . . .
"Dearest," I speak, forgetting,
"Look!
The line we could not find that day,
Here in the hidden book!"

I move about the rooms, serene,
My foot was nearly on the stair
To show you how this vine's soft green
Looked, bound about my hair.

I smile, and stitch my silken dress . . .
Oh, almost I had risen, then,
To keep the house in quietness
Till you put down your pen—

My day goes swiftly, happily,
In this dear place, in these dear walls . . .
But you are coming home to me,
Coming when darkness falls!

GET RID OF THAT GROUCH

Suppose your toast was burned or cut too thin or too thick, or there was a button off your shirt and a hole in your sock.

Perhaps the children awoke too early and disturbed your morning snooze and your wife was late with breakfast.

Your grouch did not cure the trouble and you punished yourself the most of anyone.

Morning is usually trying in most households, and your home is not the exception; all homes have annoyances and disappointments.

But that grouchy feeling will not expedite matters at your office.

You will be more tired when you get home at night if you are sour all day.

Those who work under you will reflect your ugly mood—so more trouble.

If you are under some other person, you are going to put a black mark next your name every time you show up for work when you are harboring a feeling of ill will toward anyone.

Every day you put yourself in the power of a grouchy feeling you have lost a day of enjoyment you can never make up.

ARE WOMEN GENEROUS TO EACH OTHER?

By Beatrice Fairfax

"HA ha!" laughs the masculine cynic. "Are women generous to each other? Are they decent to each other? I—should—say—not."

There is a tradition that women haven't any friends. For, supposedly when man likes a woman well enough to be her friend, he immediately begins to love her well enough to want to be her husband. And women are, according to this pleasant and cheerful theory, so busy fighting each other for the few available men and positions and happinesses in the world that each to the other is a bitter enemy.

But this is not always true.

I wonder why all women don't try giving each other to drink from the clear cup of kindness and appreciation. No one loses anything by doing this—in fact, the giver gains.

In the world of creative work—the world of writers, for instance—since, naturally I know this division better than any other, there is an amazing amount of kindness from woman to woman. But, of course, it shouldn't be "amazing." It should be the usual thing.

Writers, however, do lend a hand and cheer the beginner on her way. They respect effort, the creative gift, the courage to fight for the ideal form of expression. Some few are jealous. I have seen one tremble lest a newcomer crowd her out of her place. But if that is to be, neither the trembling, nor the malice that follows can stop it.

Cruelty from woman to woman has a boomerang effect. It is born of envy, while jealousy, malice and suspicion follow in its wake. And it destroys none so thoroughly as its creator.

SPEED MADE BY AURORA RAYS TO EARTH

By Garrett P. Serviss

"How do they know the time it took the recent aurora borealis to reach us, and how do they measure the speed of light?"

THE aurora is believed to be caused by electric impulses emanating from the sun and associated with the outbreak of sunspots. The fact that the flickering and pulsing lights in the sky are coincident with violent magnetic disturbances which affect all kinds of electric telegraph apparatus, is evidence in support of this hypothesis.

As to the precise nature of the impulses transmitted from the sun, and as to the manner and speed of their conveyance through space, several different theories exist.

One Theory

Svante Arrhenius supposes that streams or clouds of negative electrons are driven from the sun by the pressure of the light-waves, and that on encountering the lines of magnetic force which surround the earth because it is a great magnet, the luminous phenomena called auroral, or polar, lights appear in the high atmosphere.

They centre around the north and south magnetic poles of the earth; and, since the north magnetic pole is situated in the northeastern corner of North America, more than a thousand miles this side of the geographic pole, the aurora is usually better seen in the United States and Canada than in the Old World.

Speed of Light

Arrhenius calculates that the electrons would be conveyed to the earth in about forty-six hours after their departure from the sun (though the precise time would depend upon their mass), and this would imply a speed of only 555 miles per second.

The speed of light is measured by virtually cutting a ray of light into sections and then measuring the time which each section takes to move a known distance. It is analogous to measuring the speed of a ship by the number of knots on the log-line passing in a given time.
